

DATA FOR PROGRESS

From August 22 to 24, 2025, Data for Progress conducted a survey of 1,257 U.S. likely voters nationally using web panel respondents. The sample was weighted to be representative of likely voters by age, gender, education, race, geography, and recalled presidential vote. The survey was conducted in English. The margin of error associated with the sample size is ± 3 percentage points. Results for subgroups of the sample are subject to increased margins of error. Partisanship reflected in tabulations is based on self-identified party affiliation, not partisan registration. For more information please visit dataforprogress.org/our-methodology.

NB: subgroups with a n-size less than 50 (<50) are not shown on these cross-tabs. We choose not to display N<50 subgroups because the sample is too small to have statistical significance. We did, however, take samples of these subgroups for representational and weighting purposes to accurately reflect the electorate makeup. Some values may not add up to 100 due to rounding.

N=1,257 unless otherwise specified.

[19] Democratic socialists believe that the government should take a more active role to improve Americans' lives. They generally support higher taxes on corporations and high income earners, support regulations that protect workers and consumers, and want more public ownership of key industries like housing, healthcare, and utilities.

On the other hand, capitalists believe that the private sector is best equipped to make improvements to Americans' lives. They generally support lower taxes, oppose government regulations of businesses, and want the private sector to own key industries like housing, healthcare, and utilities.
